WAIWERA HOT SPRINGS.
R. GRAHAM, Esq., Proprietor.

SANITARIUM OF AUCKLAND.

WAIWERA FAMILY HOTEL

is fitted up with every convenience for the comfort of invalids, visitors, &c., &c. A well supplied table is provided, coupled with good accommodation, attention, civility, and moderate charges.

THE BATHS

are highly recommended by the leading faculty, and invalids can rely on every attention. Visitors can indulge in bathing, fishing, shooting, billiards, &c., &c.

Steamers leave Auckland for the Springs three times a week.

Further particulars can be had on application at the office of R. GRAHAM, Esq., High-street, Auckland.

Testimonial of Dr. Carey.

"Having observed, during my stay at Waiwera, the great effects produced by the use of the water bath by drinking and bathing, I am convinced of its efficacy in many disorders, more especially in rheumatism, scrofula, gout, &c.

"J. CAREY, L.R.C.P., M.R.C.S.

"Waiwera, 26th July, 1875."

"To R. Graham, Esq.

"Waiwera, March 6, 1876.

"SIR,—I arrived at the Waiwera, on 20th January, after four months suffering from rheumatic gout, and immediately after a fourth relapse on board the Mikado. I was then unable to set my right foot on the ground, and suffering acute pain. Now, after more than six weeks' use of the Baths, I am thankful to be able to walk about a mile in the day, my general health is much improved, and I hope the foundation laid for permanent recovery. It would have been very gratifying to me to have been able to bear a more satisfactory testimony. I have seen others come on crutches and go away after a much shorter stay independent of them; and I can only account for the obstinacy of my own case by the severe intellectual and continual strain of many years of wasting labour with insufficient sleep.

"I have much pleasure in bearing testimony to the excellence of the Hotel arrangements, and to the kindness shown to me by the proprietor, Robert Graham, Esq., and by the manager, Mr. Boston, and his excellent wife.

"The packing, and other processes to which I was subjected during the first week of my stay, by Mr. Edwin Turner, hydropathic practitioner, rendered me essential service, and I am persuaded that had he been present all the time to continue those processes, I should have been completely restored.

"ANNETELL M. HENDERSON."

The Honorable Samuel D. Hastings, of Wisconsin, U.S.A., having recently visited the Waiwera Hot Springs, gives the following opinion of them:—

"I have visited baths of various kinds in Europe, America, and Australia, but have never found any more enjoyable than the Hot Baths of Waiwera.

"These baths are admirably arranged, the temperature of the water is most agreeable, and the effect is most pleasant and invigorating.

"I went to the Hot Springs exhausted by the incessant labours of twelve months' constant travel through the colonies, speaking almost every evening, and I leave after a few days' experience of the Baths, having gained more in health than I ever gained before in the same length of time.

"If the hard worked literary and professional men, merchants, and others of Auckland and the other cities of New Zealand knew the benefit they could derive from a short stay at the Waiwera Hot Springs, I am sure the hotel would soon be too small to accommodate those who would seek the advantages to be secured from the use of the Baths there to be found.

"SAMUEL D. HASTINGS, Wisconsin, U.S.A."

CAUTION.—TAKE NOTICE every bottle of LINGARD'S COUGH LINCTUS bears the name of MYERS and SOLOMON on the wrapper and label, NONE OTHER IS GENUINE. Legal proceedings will be instituted against any person FRAUDULENTLY IMITATING the trade mark or offering same for sale.

GIBBS, SHALLARD, and CO., Letterpress and Lithographic Printers, Account-book Makers, 108, Pitt-street.

THE ROYAL FURNISHING ARCADE pleases and surprises everybody. A delightful promenade of 200 feet, with attractive articles of useful and ornamental furniture, arranged on both sides, all marked at lowest cash prices in plain figures, and at such figures that must induce purchases.

Many rumours are about as to the high rent of these splendid premises, and that our prices must in consequence be high. It is therefore extremely gratifying to be enabled to state that the rent is so reduced by sub-letting, as to make it no higher than one of the ordinary shops. The proprietor believes in low net cash prices and quick returns—a rapidly revolving stock is always fresh and attractive to buyers. Price lists of bargains will be advertised from time to time.

MR. PHELPS' PAIRS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—Some time ago I observed in your Parliamentary report that Mr. M'Elhone, in a characteristic if not elegant speech, said, "He (Mr. Phelps) was got to pair with the hon member for Singleton." and Mr. Lloyd interjects, "On all subjects." Now, as Mr. Browne is in the interior, and will be only getting those Heralds, and cannot consequently defend or put himself right with those gentlemen who heard Mr. Lloyd's inaccurate assertion that evening, and, as I see Mr. Cameron, in trying to defend himself on Saturday, raked up Mr. Browne's name again, will you permit me to relate how Mr. Browne came to pair with Mr. Phelps? Mr. Browne, in going to the House, met Mr. Phelps upon the Club steps. Mr. Phelps said he was anxious to go to his station, and, if Mr. Browne would pair with him upon "a vote of censure only," it would greatly oblige. Mr. Browne, not dreaming the vote of censure which hung over the aristocratic heads of the Ministry would burst that very evening, complied. That is simply the truth.

Yours faithfully,
BEE.

MAITLAND.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

A WELL-ATTENDED public meeting was held on Wednesday last, in the School of Arts, at West Maitland, the Mayor (Mr. H. S. Badgery) in the chair. The meeting was convened by the Borough Council, in response to a circular received from the joint secretaries appointed at meetings held at Newcastle and Wallsend to petition Parliament against the item of £740,000 proposed to be expended on a railway to Illawarra. The first resolution, moved by Mr. John Lee, was—"That in the opinion of this meeting (representing all classes of the inhabitants of West Maitland), the Government proposal to spend £740,000 of public money in constructing the South Coast or Illawarra Railway is contrary to all principles of justice and political economy, and, therefore, indefensible." The speaker referred to the Premier's reasons for submitting the item, viz., that it would enable the inhabitants of Sydney to obtain cheap coal and farm produce, and to erect suburban residences, and argued that they were insufficient reasons for taxing the colony generally for the benefit of Sydney alone, and that, while this district was denied £10,000 or £20,000 for flood prevention, they were asked to contribute from the general revenue for the advantage of Sydney. He hoped the sum would be rejected, but that the Ministry would not be ousted upon it, as it was composed of some able men; referring to Mr. Burns as "a better than whom never held the reins of power." Alderman Pritchard seconded, and Mr. Jacob Gorrick supported the resolution, which was carried unanimously. Alderman Griffiths moved the second resolution,—"That the inhabitants of West Maitland and vicinity, as represented by this meeting, pledge themselves to co-operate with the inhabitants of the city of Newcastle and the district townships of Waratah, Lambton, New Lambton, Plattsburgh, and Wallsend in sending into Parliament a general petition objecting to, and setting forth reasons against, the construction of the Illawarra railway." This was seconded by Mr. J. N. Brunker, and also carried unanimously. Mr. J. J. Riley moved the third resolution,—"That the following gentlemen form a committee, with power to add to their number, for the purpose of carrying out the object of this meeting:—The Mayor, Messrs. J. N. Brunker, John Lee, R. Jacob, W. H. Smith, James Fullford, jun., and James Pritchard." Mr. J. N. Brunker seconded the resolution, which was carried unanimously. The meeting then terminated with the usual vote of thanks to the chairman.

The Council of Education has appointed Mr. John Fletcher, late of Newington College, to be head master of the West Maitland Public school.

The mining difficulty at Greta is increasing, the manager is advertising for good miners, and the secretary to the Miners' Committee has advertised that there are plenty of miners on the ground anxious to resume work at the usual price paid in the district; and another secretary to a miners' association at Anvil Creek writes, that the reason the miners resist the proposed reduction is that it is unfair to reduce the wages, because the cost of haulage is increased by distance, and that if that principle were adopted every mile of distance from the port of shipment would lessen the remuneration until the reward for production would be finally lost altogether.

April 1.

NEW CALEDONIA.

THE first exhibition of the products and manufactures of New Caledonia was held at Nounica on the 16th and 17th March last. Having received from the Council of the Intercolonial Exhibition in Sydney an invitation to send here a collection of the products of the French colony, the authorities determined to take the opportunity of holding a preliminary exhibition in Nounea; and, although this project was only started about the middle of January, every one from the Governor downwards worked with a will, and the result was that a highly satisfactory collection of products was obtained. The shortness of the time was not the only difficulty to be contended against; the time of year was unfavourable; the country had not recovered from the effects of the late terrible cyclone, and a serious injury had been done to the crops by the locusts. Nevertheless, the result of the Exhibition appears, by the Moniteur, to have been very gratifying and to have been regarded by the colonists with justifiable pride. Medals and certificates of honourable mention were awarded in the classes for animals, agricultural products, minerals, and the industrial and fine arts. Amongst the minerals the exhibits of nickel were the most remarkable, and special gold medals were awarded to M. M. Higginson and Hanokar for their collections. The Governor, in closing the Exhibition on the 17th, mentioned specially the great richness in this mineral of the New Caledonian mines, which he considered would, if wisely managed, be sufficient of themselves to make the fortune of the colony; and it appears, by the remarks of the President of the Exhibition Committee, M. Marchand, that thanks to the mineral wealth of the place, and especially of the mines belonging to the two gentlemen referred to, the first vessel direct from New Caledonia to France is about to dispatched. The result of the prisoners' labour was much noticed in the Exhibition. The Governor remarked that les déportés had worked and worked well; and he recommended their example to others, urged them not to be led away by false ideas, and hinted that, whatever might be the decision of the Government in the future, the well-conducted prisoners, necessary good workers, would always be best treated. The prizes and certificates were distributed by the Governor to the successful competitors, and the first exhibition in Noumea closed, with a determination on the part of the colonists to make its recurrence an annual event. Most of the exhibits will as already stated be sent on to Sydney, and will appear in our Intercolonial Exhibition. Our contemporary, the Moniteur, in daily says of them, that although placed beside those of the Australian colonies they may not take the highest position nor perhaps receive all the praise which is accorded to them by the people of New Caledonia; still making allowance for the circumstances and the means at the disposal of the colonists, their exhibits will, they feel sure, receive considerable praise from their Sydney neighbours, whose good word which they fully appreciate, will stimulate and encourage them in the future.

CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

WE have received news to the 25th February.

In the Government Gazette the usual Customs' returns for 1875, compared with 1874, were published for general information. There is a large increase of the number of vessels entered inwards and cleared outwards (respectively 1639 of 909,826 tons against 1458 of 691,855, and 1587 of 898,436 against 1426 of 898,436); but the difference is far larger in vessels entered and cleared eastwise than not coastwise, and as regards the latter the increase of foreign vessels is comparatively larger than that of British ones. There is far less difference as regards imports and exports. The former come up to a value of £5,731,319, against £5,558,215 in 1874, the latter have even slightly diminished £1,088,125 against £1,138,538 in 1874). At Cape Town the imports have been diminished from £2,229,980 to £2,144,750; the exports increased from £651,145 to £690,454. The decrease of the total exports is felt both in wine and in wool, but ostrich feathers have been exported to the value of £301,933 against £205,640 in 1874.

Tremendously heavy rains have fallen throughout the colony, but no great disasters have occurred.

President Brand has been authorised by the Free State Volksraad to proceed to England, and his Honor, it is believed, will leave Cape Town by the mail of the 25th of March.

From the Transvaal we learn that there has been a new rush to Blyde River, near Leydenburg, where a nugget of 2 lbs. 14 dwts. has been turned up. A nugget of 17 oz. has been found at Pilgrim's Rest, in the Middle Creek. It was thickly encrusted with iron ore. Mr. Macaulay, Blyde River, has consented to stand for the representation of the Fields in the Transvaal Volksraad.

From the Diamond Fields we learn that many good finds have been made lately, including a very valuable blue diamond of pure water and great beauty. Colonel Cressman has opened his Court of Inquiry. The Administrator has made himself very popular, and is doing all he can to improve the sanitary state of the camp, in which there was a fatal case of typhoid fever a few days ago. The telegraph is being pushed forward rapidly, and communication with Kimberley by wire is expected to be established in a few weeks. Mr Recorder Barry has been appointed to a seat in the Executive Council. Landed property is rising in value on these fields.

The railway in Namaqualand, from O'okiep to Port Nolloth, 93 miles in length, has just been opened. The colonial railways are progressing at the rate of 200 miles per annum. In four years, it is hoped, the line will be open to Aliwalnorth, O.F.S., 500 miles from Capetown. Railway workmen and navvies continue to arrive from Europe, as well as matériel.

From Natal we learn that the Legislative Council has been prorogued after being fifty-three days in session. Miss Colenso, daughter of the Bishop of Natal, is now publishing an interesting novel in the Natal Colonist. The Durban Public school has been reconstructed by Mr. Crowe, on the model of the London School Board (adapted to local and colonial requirements), and is spoken of in the high-st terms. It numbers six standards of great efficiency. The harbour works are to be proceeded with at once, and a careful survey made, as directed by Sir John Coode. It is denied that a settlement of 5000 Frenchmen is to be formed in Natal. The present summer is by far the hottest ever remembered there. The first sod of the Natal railways was turned by the Lieutenant-Governor of Durban on New Year's Day, amid general rejoicings and a great amount of military and civic display.

SANDY BLIGHT IN CATTLE.—For some months past, the Albury Banner states, ophthalmic disorders have been very prevalent in many parts of the colony among human beings, but up to a few days since we were not aware that the lower animals were suffering from a similar cause. We learn, however, that large numbers of cattle at Anders have been attacked by a complaint which appears to be in every way identical with what is known as "sandy blight" among bipeds. The symptoms are described to us as being just the same. One farmer states that he has about fifteen head of cattle afflicted in this way, some of them to such an extent that the animals, for the time being, are completely blind and run against trees, &c. The remedy employed, and, which in mild cases is generally effectual, is the application of finely powdered loaf sugar, blown into the eye from a quill. Where the disease, however, has attained too firm a hold to yield to this treatment, finely powdered alum is substituted for the sugar, and usually produces the desired effect.

PRAYER FOR RAIN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—If the cacoethes scribendi has been so strong at this season of drought as to flood the Herald with petitions for a day of public prayer, the epidemic seems to have been equally catching in another form, and has given rise to an itching for reply, as in the instance of "Anti-Leetie" in Friday's paper. I certainly cannot congratulate the writer on his powers of comprehension, nor on the way he has tortured my meaning to his own purpose. Neither do I pen this as a special reply, as, having set my autograph in full to what I deemed it right to add on the matter at issue, I do not pretend to reply to one who conceals his identity under a nom de plume.

But as it may happen that some others beside the writer may have an equal misconception of the argument adduced, you will perhaps permit me to say that I did not attempt anything in the shape of vaticination. I briefly pointed out, in the first place, that rain was due at Tekutahi Nison; and it certainly does seem remarkable, in confirmation of that view, that rain should have been vouchsafed in such torrents on the very day of the Tekutahi in Melbourne, as well as in some of the districts of this colony. I further set forth that rain usually fell during the week of Passover, that is, at the equinox. In some parts of the world, throughout the West Indies in particular, it seldom, if ever, happens that heavy rains do not descend for a whole week without cessation at this and at the autumnal equinox. And in Europe it is generally found that these are the seasons, as in Palestine, for the first and the latter rains. Now, although it does not seem that this rule prevails in Australia, I do not think we should consider ourselves shut out from the general plan of God's economy, but that we should wait in all humility and patience till then for the long-looked-for and much-to-be-desired blessing. If then we find that the daily private prayers of those persons who believe that all gifts come of God be not answered—and I believe that many fervent supplications have been addressed to the Omnipotent Ruler, entreating Him to send copious showers to refresh the thirsty earth—then it will be time for a day to be set apart when all the faithful inhabitants of the land may unite with one voice and consent to plead before heaven's throne for the inestimable boon.

I have already stated that it is a custom among the Hebrews to pray for dew and rain on the first day of Passover, this year occurring on Sunday, April 9. But the prayer they then offer is not a mere selfish one, for they beseech that rain may be mercifully granted to all climes according to their seasons. They have another prayer which they offer every day, Sabbath excepted, during the whole period of six months, in which they ask "that rain and dew may be sent as a blessing upon the face of the land they live in, and that all its various products may be blessed for good."

In times of national calamity, such as drought, it is needful that more than this should be done—that the nation should join, as one man, in an appeal to the Creator and Governor of nature; but if there be any particular time close at hand, when it may come in what may be termed "its season," it is, I think, becoming in humble-minded and devout persons, who feel that the works of the Deity are for the benefit of the human kind, that they defer considering the calamity in the light of a punishment till then.

It is the opinion of the sages of Judea, Talmud, treatise Berachoth, and of the luminary, Maimonides, "that whoever utters a useless benediction transgresses the command, 'Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain.'" Hence I take it that we should not do other than offer our customary daily prayer for rain until after the season has passed when it may be looked for according to the systematic operations of nature guided by the Supreme will. In this view I am in no wise desirous of restricting that private prayer which is at the call of every creature; for I believe, with the Rev. Hugh Stowell, that prayer is to the spiritual what respiration is to the natural life—when we cease to breathe we cease to live, when we cease to pray we die in the sight of God. Yet I may be allowed to add, that there may be no praying where there are long prayers—there may be much prayer where not a word is spoken. I have always thought there was much beauty in one of the church hymns, built upon the glowing words of David, which declares that

"Prayer is the soul's sincere desire,
Unuttered or expressed;
The motion of a hidden fire
That trembles in the breast.

"Prayer is the burthen of a sigh
The falling of a tear;
The upward glancing of an eye,
When none but God is near."

I would say, in conclusion, that should it become necessary for a day of public prayer to be appointed, there will, I am sure, be none who will respond to the call with more earnestness than the Israelites, and none who will, in his capacity of "Congregational Messenger," more fervidly appeal for rain to bless the land we live in, than

Yours, truly,
ALEXANDER B. DAVIS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—Will you kindly give the following extract a place in S. M. Herald. I will not mar it by any observation of my own, further than by saying that those who doubt the efficacy of prayer for rain must also doubt the inspiration of the Scripture, or rather of those who wrote the Scripture:—

"If I shut up heaven that there be no rain, or if I command the locusts to devour the land, or if I send pestilence among my people: if my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways, then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."

Yours, faithfully,
E. H.

MR. BELL AND THE BEECHWORTH WATERWORKS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—On my return from New Zealand this morning, my attention was directed to the report of the City Engineer, which appeared in your issue of the 28th ultimo, and while I have no desire whatever to take part in the controversy, re the merits or otherwise of the Botany Waterworks, I beg you will find space for a few remarks in reference to the following extract from Mr. Bell's report:—"I was engineer to the Beechworth Waterworks in Victoria, now 'Lake Kerferd,' which has been a great success. In connection with these works I had similar difficulties to contend with that I have here. Statements were made in the Legislative Assembly by the members for the district that I never would have as much water in the reservoir as would wash a shirt, and that I never would make the embankment water-tight. Before the year was out the water was running over bye-wash, and continued so for fully three months; the works have continued since in perfect order. During the floods of 1864 it was the only inlet stood secure; all the dams constructed by the Government were carried away, including the Yackandandra Dam."

1. I was Government Mining Surveyor and Engineer for water supply in the Beechworth district in 1863-5, and am in a position to say most positively that Lake Kerferd has been always anything but a "great success," of which fact the Borough Council of Beechworth are, to their sorrow, well aware.

The watershed is comparatively limited—unusually so—and never to my recollection, during my term of office in that district, did I see water running over the bye-wash. But I have seen it run continually as a "leak," caused by defective work.

2. The floods of 1864 did not carry away "all the dams constructed by the Government."

I was engineer for five dams, whose average capacity exceeded that of Lake Kerferd, not one of which was carried away, neither did they suffer more than ordinary damage.

3. That while Yackandandah dam and another or two were destroyed, I know there were many, very many (I believe upwards of twenty) constructed under the supervision of other officers, which were more sound work than Lake Kerferd, and certainly many of them of much more utility.

4. I do not doubt Mr. Bell's experience as an hydraulic engineer; but I know well that experienced engineers have reported that the most proper use that could be made of Lake Kerferd is that of a service reservoir, as a part of a scheme to supply the various divisions of the district with water for mining, domestic, agricultural, and other purposes.

5. I very much regret having to give such an emphatic contradiction to Mr. Bell's statements; and conclude by saying I hope Mr. Bell's data in reference to the Sydney water supply are more correct than his statements as to Lake Kerferd and the other waterworks constructed by the Government of Victoria prior to 1864.

I am, respectfully,
JOHN USHER, Civil and Mining Engineer.

EXPORTATION OF AUSTRALIAN MEAT TO ENGLAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—As being interesting in relation to the above, perhaps you will kindly find a corner for the following paragraph, clipped from an English paper of February last.

The information it conveys is satisfactory, as proving the probable ready sale of the meat if in fair condition; but, at the same time, in view of the market being already occupied, it suggests, I think, to those interested in the projected shipment under Mr. Mort's freezing process, that "If it were done, when 't is done, then 'twere well it were done quickly."

I am, Sir, yours, &c.

CUSTOM HOUSE.—Entered Outwards, April 3: Agnes Edgell, schooner, 287 tons, Captain M'Kinley, for Launceston via Newcastle; Yaralla (s.), 308 tons, Captain Stuart, for Cooktown; Brisbane (s.), 891 tons, Captain Balfour, for Melbourne; Western Star, brig, 179 tons, Captain Wolsch, for Fiji; Wentworth (s.), 600 tons, Captain Paddle, for Melbourne; Windsor Castle, ship, Captain Fernie, for London; Porpoise (s.), 60 tons, Captain Banks, for Brisbane.

From a private telegram received yesterday by Mr. J. L. Haynes, we learn that the schooner Prima Donna hence, arrived at Broad Sound on the 30th ultimo.

The smart little schooner Hally Bailey, from Hobart Town, has made an excellent run of five days, having sailed on the 29th ultimo. She experienced very heavy S.S.W. gales in crossing Bass' Straits, and reports speaking the brig Narraminbie, from Newcastle to Melbourne, 40 miles N.E. of the Dromedary on the 2nd instant. She was leaking, and making for Twofold Bay; wind light, from the N.E.

The William Melhuish, a well-known trader to this port, has been converted into a barque, and sailed from the Downs on the 9th January, passing the Lizard on the 11th, she had strong N.E. trades, and crossed the equator on the 29th January in longitude 24° W. The S.E. trades prevailed light and variable. Crossed the meridian of Greenwich 23rd February, in latitude 51 S., on which parallel she ran down her casting, passing south of Tasmania 24th March, since then moderate N.E. winds, until falling in with the late southerly gale. No vessels connected with the colonies have been sighted.

The barque Agnes, with a cargo of wheat, left Port Pirie (S.A.) on the 12th March; had easterly and N.E. weather to the Promontory, thence had S.W. gales.

The fine clipper barque Mary Blair left Yokohama Bay on 28th February with a light northerly wind, and cleared the gulf that day. Experienced moderate north and westerly winds till the 6th March, being then in 17° N.; then the N.E. trade winds were caught; had a fresh trade till the 14th, when the equator was crossed in 159° E. Lost the trade that day; westerly monsoon, strong, squally, and heavy rain. Lost it in 9.30° south on the 18th. Variable winds and calms for three days, when the S.E. trade was caught in 1.30° south; they were moderate and squally. Passed between Ballona Reef and New Caledonia; passed Brisbane 29 days out. Thence N.W. winds and calms to port, making the fastest passage yet reported, viz., 35 days. She has, as usual, arrived as trim and yacht-like as ever.

The E. and A. S. M. S. Brisbane, Robert Balfour, commander, left Hongkong at 2 p.m. on 14th March, with wind fresh from N.E. and heavy sea; arrived off Booby Island at 4.5 p.m. on the 24th, and Somerset at 8.5 p.m.; left again at 11.4 p.m., and arrived at Cooktown at 4.55 p.m. on the 26th; remained at that port until the 28th; sailed at 6.25 a.m., and arrived at Townsville at 10. 0 a.m. on the 29th; sailed again at 10.35 p.m.; spoke the Bowen (s.) at 7.50 a.m. on the 30th, about ten miles to the southward of Cooktown; passed Cape Kipp at 11 a.m. on the 31st, Bustard Head at 2.25 p.m., Lady Elliot Island at 7 p.m., and Cape Moreton at 11.50 a.m. on the 1st instant; Richmond River same day at 8.30 p.m., smoky Cape at 6.15 a.m. on the 2nd, Port Stephens at 5.5 p.m., and arrived at Sydney Heads at 11.55 p.m., accomplishing the passage from China in 8 days 10 hours, the fastest run on record. Experienced fresh head winds from Cooktown. The E. and A. M. S. S. Company's new steamer Queensland arrived at Hongkong the day the Brisbane sailed, and will bring the next mail; she had over 50 Chinese passengers waiting for her. The Brisbane has made a splendid passage from Cape Moreton to Sydney Heads of 26 hours.

The Clarence (s.) crossed the Clarence Bar at 1.30 p.m. on the 1st instant, and arrived off Sydney Heads at 4.35 a.m., on the 3rd. Experienced light north-east winds to the south Solitary; then we strong southerly winds to Seal Rocks, and from thence to Sydney Heads fresh, variable wind and fine weather. Her cargo comprises: 1100 bags tin ore, 80 bags maize, 600 hides, 1300 cases meat, 251 bales wool, 45 casks tallow, 350 bunches bananas, 10 bags horns, 30 bags bones, 15 bundles sheepskins, 30 bags oysters, and sundries.

Captain Torrance, formerly master of the Blackbird (s.), has been appointed to the command of the E. and A. M. S. Somerset, which leaves for Cooktown on Wednesday.

The A.S.N Company's new steamer Yaralla leaves for Cooktown on Wednesday, under the command of Captain W. J. Stuart.

Messrs. Joseph Ward and Co. have received advices from Hongkong stating that the Cheviot (s.) was to leave about the 23rd March with passengers and cargo for Cooktown and Sydney.

H.M.S. Pearl hence arrived at Auckland on the 2nd instant, and had been placed in quarantine as there was scarlet fever on board.

From a private letter dated Adelaide, 27th March, received yesterday, we learn that the barque Adelaide, belonging to the South Australian Coal Company, from Adelaide bound to Sydney, had been compelled to put back to port after reaching as far as Cape Jaffer. The cargo, which was in a very damaged condition, had to be discharged, and it was expected that the vessel, which was found to be leaking badly, would have to be slipped for repairs.

VESSEL RUN DOWN BY THE ASIATIC.—Madeira, January 29: The Union Steamship Company's steamer Asiatic, with Cape mails of January 6, arrived at this port on the 27th, about noon, and proceeded again at 7 o'clock the same evening, but, as she was leaving the bay, she ran into the British schooner Elizabeth Moss, of Cardiff, which had only arrived with coal a few hours previously. She sank within a short time after being struck.—Cape Town Standard and Mail.

OCEAN RACE OF FIFTEEN HUNDRED MILES.—A splendid race between two vessels of our local trading fleet terminated on the 25th instant. The two ships, the Heath, 187 tons, Captain Campbell, and the Magnet, 95 tons, Captain Linklater, left Sydney on Thursday, 16th instant, the former at 6 p.m. and the latter at 4 p.m., with a strong S.E. wind. They were only six hours in company during the entire passage. The Magnet arrived at Townsville on Saturday, 25th instant at 11 p.m.; the Heath came in on Sunday, 26th, at 4 p.m. On a former occasion the Heath beat the Magnet by three days, having had a good start of wind at the start. Both vessels are crack sailers and a credit to the port of Cleveland Bay.—Cleveland Bay Express, March 9.

STRANDED ON THE ENGLISH COAST.—The following account is given in the Stockholm paper, the Dagens Nyheter, of a courageous act performed by the people of the fishing hamlet of Cresswell, on the coast of Northumberland, in rescuing the crew of the Gustave, Swedish steamer:—"On the 9th of January last, at 5 in the morning, the steamer Gustave, Captain A. O. Andersen, went ashore, in consequence of the fog and the set of the current, at the little fishing village of Cresswell, on the coast of Northumberland, five English miles north of the town of Newbiggin. The sea was breaking heavily, and the vessel struck violently at every wave. The discharge pipe burst very shortly, and the vessel drifted helplessly among the breakers, which now broke over her. Two of the boats were stove at the outset, and the third, which it was constructed to launch, and in which three men were lowered, was injured, and carried away by a sea and cast ashore in the midst of the breakers. Every one in this little village, men, women, and children, hastened on witnessing the misfortune, down to the lifeboat station, and at 3 o'clock the lifeboat was got afloat and manned by 13 out of the 15 male inhabitants of the village. Only two old fishermen were now left on shore, and the women, who had to wade well into the water to get the lifeboat afloat. After an hour's fruitless endeavour to get on board, the lifeboat had to come on shore again, and a message was sent to the nearest lifeboat station, Newbiggin, to fetch a rocket apparatus with which to attempt the rescue of the crew. The tide was rising, and at half-past 4 the lifeboat was launched once more, and at last succeeded in getting alongside of the steamer and saving the crew, several of the men had by this time been more or less injured by the breakers, but all were able to get into the lifeboat, and the last of all the master, who left his fine and hitherto fortunate steamer with deep emotion. On shore the shipwrecked men were received in the most friendly manner; whatever the poor people had they placed at their disposal, the crew were sheltered in the fishermen's huts, and the owner of a neighbouring estate, Cresswell Hall, invited all the crew to dinner. Later in the day the crew's things were also saved, but much injured by the water. A touching incident in the shipwreck deserves special mention. The writer of this heard of it on the following day, and was attracted to the spot by cries for help and of pain. On arriving to the place whence the cries proceeded, he was received by a respectable old couple—the grandfather of the lifeboat and his wife. 'It is poor Bella,' said he; 'she was not satisfied with being in the water like the others; at night she was wet through for six hours, and has now got one of her attacks of cramp on returning from Newbiggin.' It was this little pale fisher-girl who, wet through on a cold night in January, had rushed along the beach, wading through several bays by the way, and at length had reached the next lifeboat station to claim assistance for the shipwrecked people, and to accompany this feat she had been compelled to go ten English miles. Who those shipwrecked people were was unknown to her; to what country they belonged was all the same to her; it was a question of human life that might be rescued by her means. I opened the family Bible, the sole ornament of that unassuming room, and there read the name "Isabella Brown, born 1838." On the wall hangs a silver medal, awarded to the father for saving life. Everything in that little hamlet bore witness to the long struggle against the ocean. Fortunate the country which possesses men and women like those who on that icy January night flew to the rescue of the Swedish steamer Gustave and its crew!"

WRECK OF THE BANSHEE.

(From the Cleveland Bay Express, March 29.)

MR. Eliot Mullens gives the following graphic account of the late lamentable wreck of the steamer Banshee, on Hinchinbrook Island:—

All went well till noon, when the wind increased, and by 1 p.m. it was blowing a furious S.E. gale. At about 5.15 I heard the awful cry "We are ashore!" I was reading in the saloon at the time and jumped up and rushed on the main deck. The rocks were right ahead—about forty yards distant. At that instant we struck on a rock, passed over it, and went right ashore broadside on to the rocks. There was no confusion, though the sea was breaking over part of the vessel. I rushed on to the bridge, and taking advantage of the rollinshore of the vessel, jumped to a rock, but was immediately washed away to the lower down, to which I managed to cling, and then scrambled up unhurt. I turned round, and at that moment the saloon on deck was dashed to pieces, burying beneath it all the women and children, except Miss Janna, the stewardess, who escaped by clinging to a rope, and, being washed in, was dragged ashore by Peter Connell, fireman, assisted by the captain. At this time the scene was fearful, mast, funnel, deckhouses, all swept away, and men, women, children, and houses being crushed together between the hull of the vessel and the rocks.

In eight minutes all was over, and all that remained of the Banshee was a small portion of the bows and stern. Antonio, the coloured cook, had a narrow escape. They were unable to leave the vessel till the wreck was washed on to the rocks high and dry, when they scrambled safely ashore. We found the land to be a Cape Sandwich, Hinchinbrook Island. We then started in a body across the island, and camped about two or three miles from the wreck. We managed to light a big fire, but it was raining in torrents, and we had but one small tin of tobacco and five pipes amongst us. What a horrible night that was! one lady, who bore her sufferings without a murmur, and thirty-two wild haggard-looking men camped on the soaking wet grass. It seemed like five nights rolled into one, and nearly every quarter of an hour Mr. Burstall was appealed to for the time.

At daylight on the 22nd (Wednesday) twelve of us started off for the wreck to try and obtain provisions. We found only a bag of pumpkins, a ham, and a tin supposed to be preserved beef. It was on my way back that I nearly fell exhausted, and I had it not been for Bourke and Taylor, who relieved me of my load of pumpkins, I should not have reached camp. We were quite knocked up, as most of us had had no food since leaving Townsville, and had touched nothing on the steamer on account of sea-sickness. We, however, greedily eat the pumpkins raw, and then opened the tin. Disappointment was terribly depicted on every face when it was discovered to be only salt butter. It was now 9 a.m. and the captain called for volunteers to walk about 15 miles to a point opposite Cardwell and try to bring assistance. Six men immediately volunteered. These have since been picked up by the steamship Leichhardt and forwarded to Cooktown. After an hour's spell, the remaining twenty-seven, including poor Hugh Hughes, who was terribly crushed by the funnel of the steamer, shifted camp to a point quite clear of the wreck. At 12 noon the wreck was again visited, and this time with more success, for we obtained a dead sheep, which was cut out of the hold, and some tobacco and clothing. We boiled the mutton in a kero-one tin, and were not particular as to its being done, but swallowed it down piecemeal. Two bodies were found, those of Mrs. Davey and Mrs. Welsh, terribly crushed. These were buried as well as possible, one in the sand and the other amongst the rocks. The beach below the wreck was thick with wreckage, and two horses were found dead. Everyone lost everything except what he stood up in. About 4 p.m. there was another visit to the wreck, and everyone looked joyful, and some even ventured to smile, as we saw two men returning with a 50-lb. bag of flour. Things were looking decidedly brighter, and Mr. Burstall made an admirable cook, and soon had thirty doughboys boiling in our kerosene tin. How heartily we enjoyed these none but shipwrecked men can know, and little did we think our deliverance was near. But the hand of God was working for us shipwrecked men, for about 9 o'clock there was a joyful cry of "Sail ho." There was a rush to see if it were true, and true it was. It was only the work of an instant to hoist a large piece of red flannel on a pole to form a signal. In five minutes they saw our signal, and by twelve the schooner's cutter to cheer our hearts. Soon she sent in one of her boats, whilst the her-off lay off and on off Eva Island. By 10 p.m. we were all safely on board the schooner Spunkie, from Dalntree to Townsville for orders. On board we were treated with every kindness, the captain making us swallow two cups of hot tea, and then he and the mate gave up their berths for us to sleep in. Whilst on board I found out how they so soon sighted our flag. Mr. Hockaday the mate, possessed a spy-glass, and he had such a passion for looking through it that it was quite a joke with the crew about Mr. Hockaday and his glass. Little did they think it was to do such service that afternoon, for to that glass we probably owe our lives. We had a very pleasant sail from barren Hinchinbrook, which was left without regret, and it was whilst on board that I took down the names of the lost and saved which appeared in Saturday's issue. We reached Townsville about ten time on Thursday, and were all safely landed. Never will the shipwrecked men of the steamer Banshee forget the very great kindness of Captain Halerow and his crew.

The British barque Forward left Sydney on the 20th January with a fresh N.E wind; got fresh S.E. trades in latitude 27° S.; entered the Coral Sea by the inner passage when five days from port; lost S.E. trades in latitude 6° S.; passed the Indispensable Reef at noon on 1st February, and saw a vessel, of about 500 tons, lying on her beam ends ashore, about ten miles from the south end of the reef; she had the appearance of having been ashore for some considerable time; her top-gallant mast was broken and hanging down amongst the lower yards; on careful observations being taken, it was found that this dangerous reef is eleven miles further to the southward than marked on the charts; the sea was breaking very heavily on it, as far as the eye could see to the N.W. from the topsail yard. It is level with the water.—Hongkong Times, March 9.

THE LATE MR. ALFRED ANDERSON, R.A.M.—The musical public generally—artistes, amateurs, and admirers—must have learnt with regret the tidings of the untimely death of Mr. Alfred Anderson, one of the most promising of our Australian musicians. From the number of years Mr. A. does—'s family have been located here he was extremely well known, and he had a large circle of private friends, amongst whom his geniality of disposition and kindness caused him to be much endeared. The following brief outline of his career may not prove uninteresting:—He was born in Sydney about the year 1848, but at a very early period was taken by his father to Launceston, Tasmania, where Mr. Anderson, sen., was carrying on his occupation as a teacher of music, &c. When still quite a child he developed a very precocious faculty for music, and at about the age of seven was placed under the instruction of Mr. J. Packer. He proved a very apt pupil, and readily imbibed the elements of the art which was destined to become his profession. After having studied under Mr. Packer about five years he was sent to England, and entered as a student at the Royal Academy of Music, London. There, of course, he enjoyed the advantage of training both technical and practical under the professional staff of the institution, especially Mr. Pauer, his chief instructor in the pianoforte. Having completed the requisite course of study he returned to Sydney about the year 1861, and made his first appearance in public as a pianist in the uniform of the Academy; his extreme juvenility rather surprising those who saw him. He did not, however, entirely abandon study, for he entered upon another course with his old master, Mr. Packer, who had in the interim located himself in Sydney. In the year 1867 he was at Melbourne, and upon the first visit to the colonies of the Duke of Edinburgh, his Royal Highness took very favourable notice of the young artiste, and as is well known, honoured him by many tokens of his esteem. Upon the Prince leaving the colonies for England, he was followed shortly afterwards by Mr. Anderson, to whom his royal patron had held out prospects of a successful career in the mother-country. At London Mr. Anderson was presented to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and had the honour of playing at Marlborough House. But his sojourn in England was not a lengthy one—the intense cold of that country proving very injurious to the delicacy of his constitution—and when the Galatea, with her royal captain, again entered Port Jackson Mr. Anderson was once more pursuing his profession in his native land. Subsequently to this he appeared at a series of concerts in Sydney in conjunction with Miss Carrie Emanuel, with whom he also travelled in the provincial towns and in New Zealand, of which colony he also made a tour. Afterwards Mr. Anderson appears to have carried on his profession in a rather desultory way, occasionally appearing at concerts, but for the most part confining himself to private life. He first met Madlle. Ilma de Murska at Ballarat, and an intimacy between the "Hungarian nightingale" and the young pianist rapidly grew into a cordial friendship. With Madlle. de Murska he travelled in his professional capacity, and appeared with her at Melbourne, Adelaide, Sydney, and the provincial towns. They were married by the Rev. Dr. Fullerton, at Sydney, in January last. From this colony they returned to Melbourne where it was intended to proceed to New Zealand en route for Philadelphia. But the health of Mr. Anderson, which had been failing, now completely gave way. After having been for some time in a precarious condition he finally succumbed to a combination of affections of the lungs, heart, and kidneys, and expired on Wednesday morning, March 22, in his twenty-eighth year. His sufferings had been so great that his most intimate friends were denied access to him, and on the morning of his death even his wife was only permitted to approach him for a few minutes. Every precaution that medical science could suggest proved, however, unavailing. Mr. Anderson was a musician of much promise, and had he lived would probably have achieved a reputation in the musical world. He was not great as a pianist, or in composition, but his manipulation was extremely clever, and he possessed wonderful ability as a reader, playing almost any music at sight with great facility. He had besides a marvellously retentive memory. The latter gift frequently enabled him to compose or improvise a selection of airs based upon a work of which he did not possess the music, and which he had only heard a few times.

BALMAIN COMPANY VOLUNTEER RIFLES.—The annual meeting of the members of this company was held in the schoolroom, Adolphus-street, Balmain, on the evening of Tuesday, the 28th ultimo. There were present—Lieutenant Longfield (who occupied the chair, owing to the absence of Captain Cameron through indisposition), Ensign Tidswell (Regimental staff), Ensign Stack; and fifty non-commissioned officers and members of the corps. After the minutes of previous annual meeting were read and confirmed a statement of accounts and a report for the past year were submitted and adopted. The report referred to stated—1. That although the company had not recruited since May, 1873, the numbers on the roll on 1st January last were 61, of whom 51 were efficient; and that these attended during 1875 an average of 20 parades and drills per man, or 11 in excess of the number required for efficiency. 2. That of the 51 members classified as efficient on 1st January 15 had received their land orders; of whom 7 had served six years, 2 five years, 4 three years, 4 two years, 3 eighteen months, and 2 six months as efficient Volunteers since the date on which they became entitled to their orders, thus proving that the Volunteers as a body were not serving, as has been so often alleged, merely for the sake of the land orders, as every battery and company in the service could in like manner show that the majority of the members were now serving without any prospect of reward. 3. That the financial position of the company was most satisfactory, as the cash in hands of the treasurer, the balance of capitation allowance for 1874 (shortly to be received from Brigade Office), capitation allowance for 1875, value of ammunition on hand, and fines due, made a total credit of £204 17s. 3d., the liabilities of the company being nil. 4. That owing principally to the company having been deprived of their rifle range, shooting during the past year had been almost at a stand still, but that during the coming year the officers and committee would endeavour to devise some means for encouraging and promoting rifle shooting in the company. After a committee for the ensuing year, consisting of Sergeant Russell, private Schofield, sergeant Phillips, quartermaster-sergeant Tinley, and corporal Cherry, had been elected, the chairman brought before the meeting the movement now on foot for sending a team of riflemen to Philadelphia, pointing out that this was a matter in which every Volunteer should lend a helping hand, and asking every member of the company to contribute something, however small, the result being that upwards of £12 was subscribed or promised in the room from those present, and the following resolution was unanimously adopted:—"That taking into consideration the fact that the Volunteers of New South Wales should use their best endeavours to further the movement now on foot for sending a team of Australian riflemen to Philadelphia, this meeting recommends that a sum of £10 10s. be subscribed out of the company funds (irrespective of any subscriptions that may be given by individual members of the company) towards this object." The meeting closed with three cheers for the Queen and three for Captain Cameron and the other officers of the corps.

THE MINERS' HANDY BOOK.—Mr. T. F. De Courcy Browne has prepared a useful little work entitled "The Miners' Handy Book." It is dedicated to the Hon. J. Lucas (Minister for Mines), printed by A. W. Beard, and published by Messrs. Gardiner and Co., of Kingstreet. Its object is to clearly explain the effect and scope of the Mining Board Regulations, and the rules of the Warden's Courts and Mining Appeal Court. It also gives the qualifications of members and of electors in regard to the Mining Board, and has a handy calendar for 18 6. There is also included an account of rewards for the discovery of new gold-fields. The object of the author is stated in the preface in the following words:—"The purpose of the book is to clearly explain to all who work under or administer the regulations, their meaning in a popular way, so that errors and omissions may be avoided which would entail litigation, loss of time and money, and, in some cases, absolute ruin. If the explicit instructions given in each division be followed, not only will the miner be saved much time and trouble, but the officials entrusted with the responsible duty of administering the code will be saved much work of a worrying nature in explaining the details of the regulations." We understand that Mr. Browne has made mining legislation the study of his life and no doubt his newly-published vade mecum will be welcomed by the public, and prove of great advantage to persons engaged or remotely interested in mining enterprises.

THE VINTAGE ON THE MURRAY.—We learn from the Border Post that the vintage has become general throughout the Murray district. The timely rains of Sunday and Wednesday have done much towards improving the quality of the grapes by the infusion of sufficient water element so conducive to good fermentation. If the weather holds fine, the vintage of this season will be equal to, if not better than that of last year. The Murray Valley Vineyard is full-handed, and already the musts of these species susceptible of early ripening, such as the Brown Muscatel, the Ascatot, Tokay, and Rousillon, have been carted into the general collarage depôt of Mr. Falkin, at Albury.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Yesterday evening a complimentary benefit was accorded to Mr. George Giddens, the leading comedian of the "Nell" troupe, and whose versatile impersonations have contributed so greatly to the success of the pieces produced. The play selected on the occasion was not, how ever, calculated to show him to any great advantage, being an adaptation of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," in which Mr. Giddens sustained the role of Simon Fletcher. The part is not a great one, but he made the very most of it; acting with such finish and humour, and as usual being exceedingly artistic in his make-up. "Nell" doubled Eva and Topsy, two characters about as broadly contrasted as it is possible for characters to be. She changed from the former to the latter with great rapidity, and gave creditable rendering of both, introducing negro songs, as Topsy. Mr. F. Belton was rather heavy as St Clair, and Mr. Jordan an unnatural George Harris. Mr. South as Marks, however, acted with great humour throughout, and fairly made the character a leading one, but there was very little reality about it. Mr. Welsh did all that could be done with Uncle Tom. Miss Kate Dangerfield, as Eliza, played quietly and with feeling, and Miss Merton was a tolerable Ophelia. The other characters were more or less evenly sustained, but call for no special remark. The pedo dance concluded "Nell" and Mr. Giddens caused a good deal of amusement. The lower parts of the house were densely crowded, and there was a fair attendance elsewhere. To-night "Leah and Leda" will be revived.

MR. CAMERON AND HIS CONSTITUENTS.—Mr. John Lesson writes to say that Mr. Cameron was not correct in stating in the Assembly that he (Mr. Lesson) was unknown to public life until the meeting at the Gardeners' Arms. In regard to the use of the term "imbecile" as applied to him, he observes that Mr. Cameron consulted him personally as to the best means of carrying on his election. He adds that his (Mr. Lesson's) action in the Trades and Labour Council brought Mr. Cameron to a sense of his duty, and prevented his voting on the third reading of the Agreements Validating Bill. Further, he alleges that in relation to the opposition meeting he was not backed up by any member or members of the Legislative Assembly.

FATAL OCCURRENCE.—On Saturday morning about 4 o'clock, a man named Daniel Malone, 36 years of age, was in the act of coming down stairs, when he fell and received some severe injuries to his head, from the effects of which he died about 1 o'clock the same afternoon. He did not recover consciousness after his fall. Dr. Scott attended him from after the occurrence up to the time of his death.

MERCANTILE ROWING CLUB.—The boats belonging to the Mercantile Rowing Club were manned last Saturday afternoon, and proceeded up the Lane Cove River, where the members indulged in quoits, running, jumping, and other athletic sports. There were seventy members present, and the boats presented a very pretty sight as they rowed in line up the river, headed by the club barge.

THE SYDNEY ILLUSTRATED NEWS.—We have received a copy of this journal for the present month. It is of more than ordinary interest, containing as it does, in addition to a number of pictorial illustrations, a large sheet giving a view of Bathurst.

THE SALMON OVA IN VICTORIA.—The ova has been divided into several lots (says the Telegraph), some having been sent up country, while the remainder, which has been kept in Melbourne, is now undergoing the hatching process at the Melbourne Ice Company's works in Franklin-street, and is under the charge of Mr. G. P. Clifford, a gentleman well known in Tasmania and New Zealand for his success as a pisciculturist. The troughs or hatching-boxes are shallow oblong vessels of wood, rendered watertight by a zinc lining. On the bottom of the boxes is deposited a layer of gravel, such as would be found in the river beds where the salmon deposit their spawn. Each trough is divided with an outlet leading to the next one, by which a constant stream of water is kept flowing right through the apparatus. As it is necessary in hatching salmon to have a very low temperature, great care must be taken that the water be sufficiently cool. The supply is of course from the Yan Yean, and the water on leaving the pipe is usually at about 57 degrees Fahrenheit. It is then passed through a refrigerator, which reduces it by 10 degrees, and afterwards undergoes filtration. When purified it is passed round a second refrigerator, and enters the boxes at a temperature of about 47 degrees. It was at first found very difficult to get the water cool enough, but Mr. Clifford by mixing salt with the ice used in the refrigerators got over the obstacle. On Saturday afternoon, everything being in readiness, Mr. Clifford commenced to open the boxes containing the ova, which had been stored in the icehouse ever since the arrival of the Durham. There were in all thirty boxes, supposed to contain an average of 1200 eggs each, which would give an aggregate of 36,000. On examination, however, it was found that there were not more than 8000 "clear" ova in the boxes, the remainder having become quite opaque and dead. The 8000 were accordingly placed in the troughs, and everything done to secure their successful incubation. It must be mentioned, however, that, although there are 8000 "clear" ova, it does not follow that they all contain the elements of life, for there may be numerous barren or unimpregnated eggs amongst them, and the result of the experiment cannot as yet be foretold therefore with any degree of certainty. In one of the boxes the loss was so great that only five good ova out of the whole box were found. Mr Clifford attributes this to the fact of the box having been fastened with nails instead of screws, as the rest were, and concludes that the concussion caused by the hammering destroyed the ova. The largest number in good condition found in any one box was 1052, but there were in the same box about three times as many eggs that had become opaque. Mr. Clifford also states that, as the ova is in a backward condition, it will probably be some days before any indications as to the success or failure of the experiment will manifest themselves, and about a month must elapse before any young fish are visible.

THE FATAL ACCIDENT IN GULF ST. VINCENT.—All doubts regarding the fate of the three fishermen who left Edithburgh jetty on Saturday evening, March 18, to return home to Sultana, were set at rest (says the S. A. Register) by the finding, on Wednesday morning, of the bodies of John Osbourne Jenkyn and Augustus Jenkyn at Hickey's Point, between Salt Creek and Wool Bay, and about five miles from Edithburgh. A young lady, while riding along the beach, on Wednesday morning, saw the corpse of the elder Jenkyn, and at once communicated with police-trooper Orr, at Edithburgh. Shortly afterwards, further search was made on the shore, and the body of the younger Jenkyn was found a short distance from where his brother lay. The remains were removed to Mr. Giles's, Colombo Hotel, and subsequently to Edithburgh, where an inquest was held at the Court-house by Mr. Gottschalk, J.P. Mr. W. B. Cornish was foreman. The evidence showed that the men started from the jetty in their boat under heavy sail considering the high wind which was blowing. The general belief was that the craft capsized in consequence. The Messrs. Jenkyn, it is supposed, being obliged to leave the boat, stripped and struck out for the shore, as they were excellent swimmers, but that after swimming several miles together they succumbed to exhaustion and were drowned in shallow water, as the bodies were found on the shore a short distance from each other. A verdict of accidental drowning was returned. The corpse of the third man, Johnson, had not been recovered up to Friday afternoon, and the boat was still missing.

SYDNEY INFIRMARY.—Report for the week ended 1st April:—Admitted during the week—25 males, 11 females: total 36. Discharged—20 males, 15 females: total 35. Died—4 males, 3 females: total 7. Remaining in house—123 males, 73 females: total 196. Subscriptions received, £24 14s. The number of new out-door cases treated by the district surgeons from the 1st to 31st March, is as follows:—143 men, 176 women, 71 children: total 390. Of these 69 persons were visited at their own homes.

SOUTH AUSTRALIAN STATISTICS.—Mr. Josiah Boothby, the well-known Government statist of South Australia, has prepared a statistical sketch of that colony for distribution at the Centennial Exhibition in Philadelphia. Within the compass of 66 pages are compressed all the material facts which illustrate the progress made by South Australia since its foundation 40 years ago; and its present position is thus summed up by Mr. Boothby:—Fifty thousand men support thrice their number of women and children, occupy 200,000 square miles of pastoral country, and possess 6,000,000 sheep; own 6,000,000 acres of land, and grow 12,000,000 bushels of wheat; conduct an external commerce of £9,000,000 sterling, and raise £1,000,000 of revenue." This is what the Americans will call "a good record."

MR. JAMES HINTON.—The obituary column of the London Times records the death, at St. Michael's, in the Azores, of Mr. James Hinton, late aural surgeon to Guy's Hospital. Mr. Hinton was cut off in the prime of his intellectual powers, at the age of 54. He retired, in 1874, from professional practice to devote himself wholly to philosophical speculation, but long before he had attained the highest eminence as an aurist. His "Questions of Aural Surgery," and his "Atlas of Diseases of the Ear," which he published a couple of years ago, are recognised as standard works on that chirurgical specialty. In 1873 he delivered the inaugural address at the opening of the Medical School of Guy's Hospital, afterwards published in a volume as "The Place of the Physician in Health and Disease." But those who knew only of Mr. Hinton as a practical surgeon and as a writer on medical questions saw nothing of the most remarkable side of his mind. He was a very acute and subtile metaphysical speculator, and the true work of his life was the application to the problems of life and of society of the principles of a vigorous and original philosophy. These principles he first expounded formally in 1859, when he published "Man and his Dwelling Place," a very courageous and ingenious attempt to "moralize" the phenomena of the world in which we live. A portion of the same views were developed in a series of papers contributed to the Cornhill Magazine, under the title of "Physiological Riddles," which were collected and reproduced with additions in the volume "Life in Nature," by which, perhaps, he has been most generally known. These writings, with articles in the Medico-Chirurgical Review, were produced during some years of cessation from the practice of surgery, to which, however, Mr. Hinton returned in 1863. His later years, though filled with professional business, were also most fertile in intellectual production, for he never ceased to labour at the development of his ideas, which had interwoven themselves curiously with the study of pictorial art. He published little, however, during this period except a second edition of "Man and his Dwelling-place," and some articles in periodicals. Notwithstanding the richness of his speculative powers, he has left, it is feared, nothing behind him in a state fit for publication. The originality of Mr. Hinton's mind and the simplicity of his character were recognized by every one who came in contact with him, and English speculation has prematurely lost a devoted worker in fields which few till.

CRICKET.—A friendly contest between the employés of Messrs. Frazer and Co. and Messrs. Learmonth, Dickinson, and Co. took place on Saturday, at Botany, the former proving the victors by 19 runs. The bowling on both sides was unusually good, and consequently only small scores were made, as will be seen by the following:—

ALARM OF FIRE IN KING-STREET.—About half-past 9 o'clock last night, from some unaccountable reason, a quantity of matches caught fire in Saqui's tobacconist shop, and but for the prompt action of Mr. Superintendent Cumb, who was quickly on the spot with a hydrant and hose, a serious fire would have been caused. Happily, however, there was little or no damage done.

PRESENTATION TO DR. MACGUIRE.—In recognition of the services rendered by Dr. T. B. Macguire at the Exhibition Building on St. Patrick's Day, a complimentary dinner was given to him by the committee of the Hibernian Association on Monday evening, at the Harp of Erin Hotel, Riley-street. Mr. Farrell occupied the chair and Mr. H. Macguire the vice-chair. After the dinner, which was well got up by host Reilly, the Chairman presented Dr. Macguire with a silver cup and valuable ring as a token of appreciation of his valuable services to the association. A complimentary address was also read, and Dr. Macguire responded in suitable terms. The programme of toasts was then commenced with "The health of the Queen," "The Royal Family," and "His Excellency the Governor." The health of the guest of the evening was then drunk with all the honours, and various other toasts were proposed and acknowledged during the evening, including that of Mrs. Macguire, the mother of the doctor.

A STUD MANUAL.

A SUGGESTION has emanated from several of our leading studmasters which will probably be shortly brought before the Central Agricultural Society, and should such be the case, more than an ordinary degree of attention may be safely directed to it. It has been considered, and very properly so, that no standard work on the rearing of stock as specially adapted to this colony exists, and that owing to the peculiarities of climate and other physical causes, the English authorities fail to instruct the novice to the extent that they ought. Apart from the expense which any colonial author would be put to were he to risk the production of such a work himself, even in the matter of publication only, the difficulty would be increased by his being compelled to visit the leading studmasters, in order to collect a large amount of detail without which the work would be valueless. When any attempt has been made to give any information hitherto it has taken the form of the reading of papers before the Central Society, and, carefully as these papers have been prepared, the amount of dissent expressed by many of the auditors showed pretty clearly that the author of the paper spoke mainly from his own standpoint, and formed his opinions entirely from his own experience and practice in some particular locality. Now, when it is considered that under the Land Act of 1875 small graziers are springing up in all directions, and the temperate parts of the colony are being transformed from large runs into small sheep farms, and that as a class the owners require a good deal of education in the mode of management, some standard text book is sadly needed. Further, the most approved method of selecting stock for particular districts requires a good deal of explanation, and this can only be gained by a critical examination of the stock and mode of management of the most successful local breeders. To effect this object it is proposed that the Central Association should offer valuable premiums to be competed for by studbreeders, in order to show under what circumstances, favourable or otherwise, the best results can be obtained; that two qualified judges should be appointed, assisted by a competent secretary, on their tour of inspection, and that from their reports the groundwork of a national work should be formed, having for its object the thorough explanation of the most successful method to be adopted in the breeding and rearing of stock in individual districts. It is contemplated that there would be many entries in both the sheep and cattle sections, and that if an entrance fee, say of twenty guineas, was charged, these fees, with the proceeds of the sale of the work, should recoup the Association the expenses of compilation and publication.

To a great extent the idea is not a novel one, as similar prizes are given by country associations in the mother country for the best-managed farms, and the best collection of stock stock; but the English practice, by the proposal now under notice, is so far extended as to make the details gathered by the inspection of the entries the groundwork of a valuable text-book. The difficulty of securing competent judges, thoroughly versed in the varieties of soil, pasturage, and climate in the colony, no doubt would have to be faced, but it might be got over in a similar manner as occasionally in England, where the societies nominate a certain number of judges considerably more than required, and the competitors strike the list as in the case of a special jury. If the object to be gained by this wholesale competition, so to speak, is a good one—and few will be inclined to deny it—what body more qualified to carry it out than the Central Agricultural Society? It is essentially an educational institution, and is in the best position to consummate the object. However far the fact of encouraging breeders of stock to exhibit at periodical meetings of the society may be a stimulus to care and attention, practically, as far as the spectator is concerned, nothing is gained beyond showing him the type of a good animal, and rewarding the owner by a premium. The cost of producing such stock, or the point of breeding them in bulk, is not shown in the slightest degree, and whether the condition they exhibit can be maintained or produced in other animals under similar treatment, and at a profit to the owner, is hypothetical. The action of the society simply means giving a prize to a single specimen, and there is no guarantee that the owner has any more like it. The English societies especially guard against this, more particularly in the northern counties, where rural society is virtually swarm. The largest prizes they offer are for the best stock on a farm, coupled with the best and most economical mode of management. The reports of the judges in this particular section as published in the local Press invariably allude to any special feature of management, and therein their educational value is apparent. This appears to be exactly what is required in New South Wales. The Press has to a certain extent striven to chronicle the progress of the colony by describing station properties through their travelling reporters; but as a rule these descriptions have been more graphic than critical. Generally speaking, the writers have been silent as to the conditions under which certain results were achieved, and the reports did not attempt to deal with specialities of management or the types of animals best suited to particular localities. This kind of information is not to be found in any colonial work extant, and its dissemination would prove of incalculable benefit. Whether it is to be effected by the suggestion under notice, and how far the same may be practicable, need hardly be discussed at present; but the suggestion is well worthy of reflection.

ADMISSION INTO THE INFIRMARY.—A man named Henry Roden was admitted into the Infirmary yesterday, suffering from injuries received through a quantity of earth falling on him.

PRESENTATION.—The Rev. Charles Archdall has been presented with £55 by his late parishioners at Hunter's Hill and Gladesville, as a parting gift and in appreciation of his services during his ministry in that district.

FAT STOCK.—Mr. W. Fullagar reports having sold, for Mr. B. Richards, 105 bullocks averaging £8 17s. each, 15 cows averaging £6 5s. 9d. each, 73 bullocks averaging £9 10s. 9d. each, 37 cows averaging £6 18s. 6d. each RVP brand.

THE DEVIL FISH.—Mr. Henry Butler, of Portland, in a letter to the local Express, relates the following marine adventure, which he experienced a few days ago:—"On Saturday afternoon, the 25th instant, whilst climbing the rocks round the lighthouse with my wife, I saw approaching from the sea what at first appeared to me to be a gigantic starfish, but upon its coming into shallow water I recognized it as an octopus, or 'devil-fish.' It came close to my feet, evidently making towards me. I struck it with a gun-cleaner which I held in my hand, and instead of retreating, as I expected, it seized the rod with one of its legs or suckers, extending its leg along the whole length of the rod. I endeavoured to pull it away, but the beast still followed me, and climbed on to a rock where I stood. It then released its hold and went seaward. After a few seconds it returned, and again seized the rod—this time with two of its suckers—remained quiet for a short time, puffed itself out to an enormous size, changed colour from a reddish brown to a light blue or milky colour, and then retired. From the tip of one sucker to the tip of another it measured at least eight feet."

ANOTHER EARTHQUAKE IN SOUTH AUSTRALIA.—On Wednesday, March 22, another slight earthquake shock was experienced at Tanunda and in the adjoining districts. The following extracts from letters published in the South Australian Register furnish particulars of the nature of the disturbances as heard in different localities. Our Tanunda correspondent states that "two heavy shocks were felt there, the first at 7 o'clock, and the other about a quarter to 11 p.m. The former was quite strong enough to frighten the fair sex. The direction appeared to be from north-west to south-west. From Greenock we learn that the latest shock, though not so strong as the previous one, was longer, being about 15 seconds in duration, and passing, like the other, from north to south." We have been favoured with notes made by Mr. Henry Marshall at Angaston. This record that at 7 p.m. the shock was slight; but the one about half-past 10 was smart and rumbling, sufficiently perceptible to be heard over the sound made by a brass band practising in a small room in the house. Several fine meteors were seen on the same evening in the north-west. The earthquake was also noted at Lyndoch at half-past 7 as a slight rumble, but at twenty-five minutes to 11 there was rather a sharp shake which made doors and dishes rattle. The course appeared to be from south-west to north-east. Kapunda folk had similar experiences, and heard crockery rattle on kitchen shelves, while in some instances more cumbrous articles were moved.

DEATH BY DROWNING.—The Wollombi correspondent of the Maitland Mercury reports:—On Wednesday, the 29th March, an inquest was held by Mr. District Coroner J. S. Milne, at Wollombi, touching the death of one Charles Davis, at the Court-house, Wollombi. The following evidence was adduced:—Senior-constable James, who deposed, a little after 6 o'clock on Tuesday evening, on the Wollombi Racecourse, I was informed that a man named Charles Davis was drowned in a waterhole, near the racecourse; I immediately went down to the spot named to me, and at about twenty yards from the bank I found a hat, coat, vest, and a pair of boots; identified the hat and coat as belonging to Charles Davis; examined the body, and could discover no marks of violence or bruises upon the deceased. Roland Ross stated as follows: I am a labourer residing at West Maitland; yesterday (Tuesday) evening, as I was leaving the racecourse, about 6 o'clock, I supposed, I saw a man, commonly known as Charlie the painter, near the gate or slip-rails leading from the course; I saw him going into the water, and sang out to him to go out; he made me no answer; I sang out to a man in a tilted cart to tell that man to go out of the water; deceased did not appear to take any notice, and started to swim across; at that time I saw him go under the water; I at once ran down and undressed myself, and called out to the man with the cart to call the police, that there was a man drowning; I jumped into the water, and swam out to where I saw deceased go down, and dived after him; I dived three times, and could neither touch the body or the bottom; some men standing on the bank cried out "There's the bubbles;" another young chap then jumped into the water with his clothes partly on; finding I was unable to reach the bottom I came out, dressed myself, and went to where I was lodging; that is all I saw of deceased until next morning, when I saw his body taken out of the water by senior-constable Smith; witness's opinion was that deceased was not in a fit at to go into the water, and that was his reason for calling out to him not to go into the water; saw deceased take off his hat and boots; witness said he believed he merely went into the water for a swim, and that he was accidentally drowned; believed deceased was not a man likely to commit suicide. The jury, without retiring, found that deceased met with his death by drowning whilst bathing.

LAW REFORM.

IV.

THE next subject dealt with by the Judicature Act, is that of the mode of pleading and practice. Under the present system, the plaintiff's case is either set out, as at common law, in several different ways, each showing at law, a technically different cause of action, though each may be based on the same facts, and would be supported by the same evidence; or, as in Equity, by alleging much more by way of evidence than is necessary to inform the defendant of the case which will be made against him. The faults of both systems of pleading are avoided by these Acts; and the attempt is made to force suitors to so frame their statements as to combine the conciseness and accuracy of the Common Law pleadings with the orderly arrangement of facts, stated in the plainest language, which is shown in Equity pleadings. To bring about such a result would be a triumph in legislation; and it is well worth our while to consider what has been done in this direction by the Imperial Parliament, and how such measures would suit the circumstances of this colony.

In the first place, an action is begun by the service by the plaintiff on the defendant, of a writ of summons, indorsed with a short statement of the claim made, or remedy required—such as "for arrears of rent," or "to have an account taken as to &c," or "for specific performance of an agreement dated, &c." To this writ the defendant, if he wishes to contest the plaintiff's claim, puts in an appearance; and then, the plaintiff must, generally, deliver more detailed particulars of his claim. This "statement of claim," as it is called,—as well as all subsequent pleadings, should contain concise statements of the facts relied on in the form of a narrative, and divided into paragraphs; but without the evidence by which such facts may be proved. At the end should be mentioned the relief claimed. No pleadings need be signed by counsel; or filed, until the time for entering judgment. The same rules apply to the defence. And the defendant may not only plead a set off, but also any such counter claim as would give him a right to bring a cross-action against the plaintiff; this will be a good defence. So that unless it would be inconvenient—by one and the same trial—a final judgment, with damages or other remedy for the plaintiff, or for the defendant, may be given both on the original and on the cross-claim. And if such cross-claim should include charges against other persons along with the plaintiff, there are modes for bringing such third parties before the Court.

To the defence the plaintiff may plead in reply, and subject to the order of a Judge, the pleadings must be brought to an issue at this point. Thus, under ordinary circumstances the statement of claim, the defence, and the reply must close the pleadings.

The practice of Courts of Equity is followed and enlarged upon by allowing either party to put questions to his opponent by serving him with written interrogatories. These interrogatories must be answered on oath.

Instead of evidence being taken, as now, in some cases viva voce, as in trials at Nisi Prius; in others by affidavits as in applications to a Judge; and in Equity by affidavits or the unsatisfactory way of reducing to writing the results of examinations and cross examinations held before the Master, it is generally taken in trials under the Judicature Acts, viva voce, in open Court. However, it is in the power of the parties to agree that evidence shall, instead, be taken by affidavit; and the Judge may, in proper cases, order particular facts to be proved by affidavit. In all cases, then, where there is a conflict of evidence the best means may be employed to sift the true from the false; and by the wholesome dread of cross-examination in open Court before a jury, who watch every gesture and tone of voice, to prevent perjury or equivocating evidence.

These are the leading provisions of the Judicature Acts. As few details as possible have been mentioned so as to avoid distracting the reader's attention, but it should not be thought that the measure is as crude as might be imagined from a rapid perusal of these articles. Many express enactments, too, have been omitted for the same reason, and because they aim more at substantive alterations in the law than at the reform of the modes of procedure. The ends of the writer will have been reached if he succeeds in drawing the attention of the legal profession and of the public to the fact that these changes have been made in the English law, and that they will probably be changes affecting great improvements. No one will hesitate to say that radical reform is necessary. It is a significant fact that parties frequently prefer to forego their rights rather than be put to the delay and expense known to attend a suit in equity; or, when practicable, bring their causes within the jurisdiction of the common law side of the Court. It is also none the less true that justice, where it is not "delayed," is "hindered" or "denied" by the inability of the Court at common law to admit all defences, whether legal or equitable, or to bring before it all the parties interested. An advance in this direction has been made by the Common Law Procedure Acts, and the success of these measures is an encouragement to us to go still further, and not only render our procedure more simple, flexible, and uniform, but also take the bold course shown us by the English Acts, and bring about a concordance between law and equity. The legal profession need not fear that, by the abolition or simplification of legal forms, their services will be the less required. However simple and plain to the understanding of the lay world may become those matters which before were known only to a few, the study of law must ever remain one which requires the highest intellect for its perfection. Wherever the English law obtains, there acuteness, accuracy, scholarship, and trained common sense will be sought for and found among the members of the legal profession. It is also plainly to the interest of all, that the time spent by the practitioner in acquiring special technical knowledge in the two branches of the law should be economised as much as possible. The time thus spent is for most purposes wasted; and every minute spent in such studies may be better used in gaining wider 900 wethers, for Mr. W. Moffit, to 9s; 313, for Messrs. W. J. and A. Lobb, ewes and wethers, at 7s 9d to 10s 6d.

Fat Lambs.—A very full supply for the time of year came forward, 2149 head being penned. Sales were dull, and prices generally gave way to the extent of 1s to 2s. We quote—Good and prime at from 7s 6d to 10s; others, from 4s to 6s 6d. We have sold 10½, for Messrs. W. J. and A. Lobb, at 10s; and 280 head from the Duck Ponds.

Store Cattle.—The weather for several months past having continued extremely dry throughout the country, very few cattle have been sold, and the demand continues slack, except for superior lots for Victoria. We have a very fine lot of 800 bullocks, now near Gundagai, travelling south.

Store Sheep.—There are inquiries for store sheep, but little business can be done while holders ask prices beyond buyers' expectations.—March 29.

[J. C. WALKER AND CO.]

Fat Cattle.—1417 yarded and sold to-day, those from the north showing the effects of the long journey and bad feed on the road; the Gipps Land and Western district being good. We have to report a fair market at late rates. Quotations—Prime bullocks, £11 to £1; extra prime and single beasts, £14; good, £10 10s to £10 10s; medium and inferior, £8 10s to £8; best cows, £5 to £5 10s; others, £3 10s to £4. The following are some of the principal averages:—Patterson's bullocks, 48 2s 6d; Hart bullocks, £10 6s 4d.

Fat Calves.—70 yarded, the quality of which was not equal to our usual supply. Prices about 3s lower, saw best, made 50s to 15s; good, 40s to 5½s; others, 20s to 30s.

Fat Sheep.—18,053 penned and sold to-day, the quality of which, excepting a few prime, was generally middling and inferior. Although the supply was by no means excessive, yet the market was generally very languid, last week's prices being scarcely maintained for best, inferior is lower. Quotations—Best crossbred wethers, 13s to 14s 6d; prime merino ditto, 12s to 13s; good ditto, 10s to 12s; medium ditto, 7s to 8s; best merino ewes, 7s 6d to 8s 6d; others, 4s to 5s 6d. We sold 2400 wethers, from Riverina, at 11s; also 4 small drafts ewes and wethers at current rates.

Fat Lambs.—439 penned for sale, a fair proportion of which were good. The market was very slack, however, last week's advance was quite lost, prices lower by abt at 2s, and the market cleared with difficulty. Quotations—Prime lambs, 7s to 8s 6d; medium, 5s 6d to 6s 6d; others, 3s to 4s 6d. We have this day sold—Drafts for Mr. Thomas Stevens, S. Hand, Bennett, to 7s 6d.

Store Stock.—The drought having partially broken has revived hopes of business for all classes of store stock. Quotations are unaltered, but we have many inquiries for suitable stores. Good-framed well-grown bullocks are worth from £5 10s to £6 10s; store wethers in Riverina, 7s to 8s, breeding ewes from choice flocks 9s to 11s. We sold this week, in conjunction with Messrs. Ettershank and Co., for Mr Hurtle Fisher, Toorangaby, 12,000 sheep of the Lincoln breed, at for wethers to 21s, rams to 34 guineas, and ewes at proportionate rates.

Stations.—We have plenty of inquiries since the rain, and two or three transactions almost closed.—March 29.

WOOL.

[JACOMB, SON, AND CO.]

London, February 8, 1876.

THE Wool Importers' Committee have to-day considered the propriety of postponing the opening of public sales of the season (previously fixed for 15th instant) in consequence of the tardy arrival of the large quantity of the new clip now at hand, but have determined not to disturb that fixture—they will, we hear, on the 15th instant announce a date for the commencement of the second series. The market continues to wear a healthy appearance, without much real business doing on any large scale, a few wools of the new clip have been placed at satisfactory prices, and more could have readily found buyers had not importers generally preferred awaiting public sales now imminent. Stocks are reported light in most of the manufacturing districts, but trade in Germany continues bad.

	There are arrived for sales to commence 22nd February.	Quantities offered at last Sale.	There were catalogued in sale commencing 23d Feb., 1876.
	Bales.	Bales.	Bales.
N. S. Wales and Queensland ...	14,072	24,871	20,875
Victorian	30,478	102,407	99,423

Cape and Natal	31,521	4,000	39,063
Total bales	91,880	181,836	206,106

Of which some 7000 bales Capes have been already forwarded. A sale of about 16,000 bales of South American is in progress at Antwerp, prices ranging about on a par with their previous rates, with a slight tendency here and there in favour of the buyer, especially in wools of the old clip or of poor growth and condition.

METALS.

[E. W. S. MURRANT'S QUOTATIONS.]

February 4, 1876.

A somewhat firmer feeling has pervaded the metal market during the last day or two, but it is difficult to account for, and will very possibly not be maintained.

Tin: Foreign has been rather more inquired for, and slightly rallied; it is, however, not easy to predict the course of prices in this article, the opinions of operators diverge widely, and "near" sales are freely made. The month's report of the committee is as follows:—1250 tons Straits and Australian at 78s to 81s for cash and shipment.

Copper: Chili appears a trifle better, the fluctuations in this metal are now so very slight as to show an almost entire absence of speculation, and the quantity changing hands is quite minimal as compared with the business formerly carried on in it. The sales as reported by the committee were for the month 1250 tons g. o. b's, and named brands at £80 10s to £82 10s for cash and arrival.

Iron, spelter, lead and tinplates, show no particular change.

Quicksilver is rather better.

LIQUORS.

[F. W. COSENS]

Since the commencement of the new year there has been more activity in both the wine and spirit trades. The stocks of wine in dealers' hands have very sensibly declined, the imports of the past year falling short of the consumption and exports by about half-a-million of gallons. The stock of rum shows an increase, and of brandy a decline, compared with 1874. The latest advices from Cognac report firm prices for brandy for the vintage 1875, and large purchases are said to have been made on English account. A steady demand continues on this side for the older vintages suited to the requirements of the home trade, and prices, in the absence of forced sales, are firmer. In wines there has been a more active trade since the turn of the year—prices, however, remain moderate for all good consuming descriptions. Port wines continue to show an increased consumption. The trade in rum is reported large, but prices remain without material alteration. With reference to other spirits nothing calling for special comment has occurred.—February 9.

CAUTION TO PURCHASERS.

The value of this well-known Family Medicine has been lately tested in all parts of the world, and by all grades of society, for upwards of FIFTY YEARS. Its well-earned extensive sale has induced SPURIOUS IMITATIONS, some of which in OUTWARD APPEARANCE so closely resemble the original as to have deceived many purchasers. The proprietor, therefore, feels it due to the public to give a special caution against the use of such imitations.

Purchasers are, therefore, requested carefully to observe the four following distinctive characteristics, without which none are genuine:—

1. In every case the words JOHN STEEDMAN, Chemist, Walworth, Surrey, are engraved on the Government stamp affixed to EACH PACKET.

2. Each SINGLE POWDER has directions for the dose, and the words John Steedman, chemist, Walworth, Surrey, printed thereon.

3. The name Steedman is always spelt with two EE's.

4. The manufacture is carried on solely at Walworth, Surrey.

TO CAPITALISTS, SPECULATORS, AND OTHERS.

MILSON'S POINT, NORTH SHORE,
ADJOINING the PROPERTY of MILSON'S POINT FERRY COMPANY.
THAT VALUABLE BLOCK OF LAND, together with BUILDINGS erected thereon, having LARGE and DEEP WATER FRONTAGE; also a large frontage to MAIN ROAD leading to MILSON'S FERRY.

On THURSDAY, April 13.

L. E. THRELKELD has received instructions from the proprietor, Mr. W Paul, to sell by auction, at the Land Sale Rooms, on THURSDAY, April 13th, at 11 o'clock,
All that valuable property, consisting of Block F, having the following frontages:—
100 feet to Milson's Wharf
120 feet to Milson's Road
200 feet to deep water frontage
} all more or less,
on which is erected a substantial stone house, containing 6 rooms, kitchen, &c. Block E has a frontage of 42 feet to Milson's Road by a depth of 86 feet, on which is erected a weatherboard and brick-built cottage, containing 4 rooms, kitchen, &c.
These properties are occupied by Mr. Paul.
Block A has 72 feet frontage to Milson's Road by a depth of 90 feet, more or less, upon which is erected two weatherboard cottages, each containing four rooms.
Block B has also a frontage of 42 feet to Milson's Road by a depth of 90 feet, more or less, upon which is erected two brick cottages and shop, each containing four rooms, &c.
Blocks A and B are let on building leases, which have about 20 years to run; the buildings and other improvements are to be the property of the landlord at expiration of leases.

☞ The whole of the property having over 300 feet of the finest water frontage obtainable in this part, and commanding as it does such unrivalled facilities for loading and unloading vessels of large tonnage, makes this a most valuable property; and the auctioneer deems it his duty to call the special attention of those interested in wharf and coal properties, as well as of steamship companies, to this important fact.
The contemplated extension of the Newcastle Railway to Sydney would also add immensely to the value of this truly magnificent property, as Sydney would then be the greatest Coal Port of the Southern Hemisphere.
As an investment with a certainty of advance in value, such a chance as this may never again present itself.
Plan and all particulars at Rooms.

Title unquestionable.

BUSINESS ANNOUNCEMENTS

W. H. ROLFE, on relinquishing business, embraces the opportunity to return his thanks for the large and liberal support awarded him during the last twenty years, as Timber Merchant, and begs further to solicit a continuance of those favours on behalf of his late salesman, JOHN JAMES LIVINGSTONE, who will continue to carry on the business on his own account, from the 1st day of April next. Mr. Livingstone's thorough knowledge of the timber trade is a guarantee that any orders he might be favoured with will be promptly and faithfully attended to.
W. H. ROLFE respectfully requests that all ACCOUNTS owing him may be forwarded, with as little delay as possible, to J. J. LIVINGSTONE, whose receipt will be a sufficient discharge.
W. H. ROLFE, Timber Yard,
Pitt-street, Circular Quay.
March 25, 1876.

With reference to the above, J. J. LIVINGSTONE begs to inform the trade and the public generally that on and after the first day of April next, his business will be carried on at the Yard, Pitt-street, Circular Quay, where he solicits the favour of your patronage, and trusts by prompt attention to merit a continuance of those favours bestowed on his predecessor.
J. J. LIVINGSTONE,
Timber Yard, Pitt-street,
